Mounted upon the horse, from the back of which he fired the fatal shots, Wilhoit passed his own home like the wind as he raced for the railroad station at Bracht to escape the wrath of Sparrow's friends, and, as he stated, "to hurry to Covington and give myself up to the police." The Covington police were notified by telephone that Wilhoit left Bracht, headed for Cincinnati, and went to Sandford and Serg. Finney met the train at Ludlow and placed him under arrest, charged with murder. While lying on the cot in his cell, nerves unstrung and apparently laboring under an awful strain, Wilhoit in weak whispers told the story of the crime. "Yes, I shot Sparrow," he said, "I never had any intention of denying it, no more than I had of trying to escape. There had been bad blood between us for a long time."

Lunsford was located in a cave on top of Barnes mountain and was not taken until after a hard fight. Owing to the brutality of the crime feeling is very bitter against the prisoner and threats of lynching are heard on all sides. Sheriff Garrett has the jail heavily guarded and promises a warm reception to a mob should one appear. A telephone message from Rice Station, eight miles west of Irvine, stated that a crowd of more than 50 men passed there at dark, headed in the direction of Irvine. It is believed that this is a mob going for Lunsford.

HISTORICAL SKETCH RAIL- ROAD FREIGHT RATES.

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. '05.—Circumstances have made Wisconsin the storm center of the agitation for government regulation of railway rates. Circumstances number one is the fact that Milwaukee, the metropolis of the State, is the home of E. P. Bacon, the leader and spokesman of such organized effort as is behind the movement. Another circumstance is that Gov. La Follette, professional foe of corporations and Mr. Bacon's chief lieutenant, also lives in Wisconsin. Still another circumstance is the fact that Wisconsin now has in force a railroad law, drafted by Mr. Bacon and Gov. La Follette, which was designed to remedy all evils complained of in railroad management, but which seems to have miscarried in part, at least.

E. P. Bacon, the leader of the rate regulation forces, has been a grain commission merchant in Milwaukee since 1865. He is one of the wealthy men of the city, a deacon in the Presbyterian church, a man noted throughout the State for unostentatious charity and sterling integrity. Mr. Bacon's word is as good as his bond. Indeed, everyone in Wisconsin knows he can be depended upon without either word or bond. He has been twice President of the Chamber of Commerce, but has never held or sought political office. In all matters save one Mr. Bacon's business judgment is esteemed by his fellow citizens as of the soundest. The exception is the railway rate question.

Regarding Mr. Bacon's attitude on railway rates, Milwaukee, his home city, has formerly put itself on record through resolutions adopted by the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association. This is an organization with a membership comprising practically every business man of prominence in the city. They represent products manufactured in Milwaukee last year of an aggregate value of $165,439,494 and a wholesale trade of $384,500,164. The Bacon resolutions were to the effect that Mr. Bacon had the full and free permission of the Association to go in and wipe up the earth with railroads if he wanted to, but that in the progress he must not presume speak for, or in any matter whatsoever involve, the Association without first obtaining express permission from the board of directors. To express it in another way, Milwaukee has taken occasion to assure Mr. Bacon officially that his long career as an upright business man and good citizen has earned for him the right to indulge freely in any little eccentricity that may serve to interest him, but he must not disturb the neighbors. For Milwaukee's manufacturers in 1904 showed an increase of $13,628,567 over the preceding year, while the volume of wholesale trade increased $27,806,197 in the same time. Such a condition of prosperity is altogether too satisfactory to be interrupted.

Mr. Bacon is also Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Law Convention, which he claims embraces 512 organizations of various sorts in 45 States and territories with a total membership of 400,000. When a hard-headed, steady-going business man undertakes to do a certain thing there must be some reason for his action. When the undertaking is a national crusade which attracts the attention of eighty million people and sets thirteen billion dollars in capital by the ears, the underlying motive thereof is worth seeking.

By consulting the annual report of the Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce for 1904 it will be found that the total receipts of grain of all kinds at Milwaukee in 1904 were 37,794,006 bushels as compared with 38,359,949 bushels the preceding year, 48,611,247 bushels in 1899 and 51,654,740 bushels in 1898. Also that in 1904 Milwaukee handled 8,427,256 bushels of wheat as compared with 24,457,347 bushels received at Chicago, her rival on the one side, and 86,935,980 bushels received at Minneapolis, her rival on the other side, and that Milwaukee handled 17,519,400 bushels of corn as compared with 25,316,947 bushels received at Chicago. These comparisons viewed in the light of the knowledge that Mr. Bacon is a grain commission merchant, become illuminating.

Mr. Bacon began handling grain on a Commission basis forty years ago when all grain was marketed through commission men who got a "rake-off" of a cent a bushel on everything they handled. For many years Milwaukee grew rapidly in importance as a grain market. Then Minneapolis developed, into the world's foremost milling center and Chicago had become firmly esta-lished as the great cross-roads on the highways of commerce. When these two conditions had become crystallized Milwaukee dropped from her eminence as a grain market like the stick from a spent rocket.

At the same time the methods of marketing grain were revolutionized. Instead of commission men doing the business in elevators owned by the railroads and getting a cent a bushel for acting as clerk, great elevator companies with large capital were formed which bought the grain outright and stored it in their own elevators until the market was favorable. Instead of a mere commission they made a profit, often of several cents a bushel. The commission for such houses as still contrived to keep in the business dropped to three quarters of a cent, then to half a cent and finally to a quarter of a cent a bushel. The commission man's profit was clipped from both ends until nothing was left out ends, with no intervening middle.

While methods were thus completely changed Mr. Bacon clung to the same old way of doing things as immovable as the Rock of Gibraltar. Instead of starting for high ground when the flood came Mr. Bacon seized a broom and sought to sweep the waters back.

This interesting effort was begun in 1884 when the Chicago, Burlington and Northern was completed along the western boundary of Wisconsin to Chicago but not to Milwaukee, and the Illinois Central was built up through central Wisconsin, also missing Milwaukee. The Milwaukee roads gave the same rates on grain to the Wisconsin metropolis as the Chicago roads gave to Chicago. Rates being equal grain naturally went to the market which had the advantage of location, which chanced to be Chicago. Mr. Bacon wanted to divert the currents of commerce by law, so the Interstate Commerce Commission was asked to compel the C. M. & St. P. railway to grant lower rates on grain from Wisconsin points to Milwaukee than to Chicago, because in most cases Milwaukee was 60 to 75 miles nearer to the point of shipment. The grain producers were not with Mr. Bacon in his endeavor to compel them to ship all their grain to Milwaukee. They preferred to have competing bids from two markets. In due time the Interstate Commerce Commission ordered the C. M. & St. P. to grant lower rates on Wisconsin grain to Milwaukee than to Chicago.

Thereupon the Burlington and Illinois Central roads, which would have been shut out of the grain trade, in the greater part of Wisconsin, by this arrangement, since they did not reach Milwaukee, announced that if rates were to be reduced on distance they would reduce the rate on grain to Chicago just as much as the other road reduced it to Milwaukee. This would have brought the situation back to the starting point with a loss of revenue to the railroads as the net result of the operation.

The next move was known as the Milwaukee Chamber of Commerce case. Mr. Bacon and two or three followers complained to the Interstate Commerce Commission that the rate on wheat from Iowa, South Dakota and Southern Minnesota to Minneapolis, the great milling center, which now dominated the great northwest wheat market, bore an unjust relation to the Milwaukee rate. The Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce promptly intervened and became a party defendant. It was a vital matter to Minneapolis to be able to buy wheat for her great mills advantageously. The Commission ruled that the various railroads must get together and fix a tariff to suit would everybody concerned. The rate per se was never called in question; it was the difference. The traffic men got together and wrangled until they were tired, then announced that they could not determine upon a differential just to both cities and to the railroads. There was a rehearing and then a second rehearing with no action. It was pointed out that the identical reasoning which justified the C. M. & St. P. road in giving Milwaukee a lower rate than Minneapolis would justify the Omaha road in giving Minneapolis a lower rate than Milwaukee. One railway had the shorter route to Milwaukee, the other the shorter route to Minneapolis.

Finally all the railroads involved said if the Interstate Commerce Commission would make a tariff they would adopt it. The Commission declined. Then the roads said if the Chamber of Commerce of Milwaukee and Minneapolis would each appoint a committee to meet in joint conference to make a tariff they would adopt that. The committees couldn't agree and the job of making a freight rate which would give each of two rival markets the advantage over the other was abandoned in despair by everyone but Mr. Bacon and a few faithful followers. Becoming convinced at last that existing laws were not strong enough to make the current of commerce run up hill, the national crusade for government regulation of rates was begun in 1900.

This movement will reach its climax next month when the foremost business men of Chewelah, Peshigo, Dea Island, Ogden, Gaffney, Danville, Marinette, Colville, Fremont, Great Falls, Grand Junction, Steubenville, Somerville,

WHY J. I. COOK IS FOR THE INDEPENDENT TICKET.

Why are you for the Independent Ticket? has been asked me time and again, and I know the question has been asked of hundreds of other republicans in this county. I am for it because I believe it is for the best interest of the tax payers and people generally in this county. Why do I believe that? Because I believe there is in our court-house maintained a ring or clique; that the officials comprising it work more for their own interest than they do for the interest of the people of the county; that their object is to keep themselves in office, draw their pay and hand out benefits and privileges to a chosen few; that they have been extravagant with and mismanaged the fiscal affairs of the county.

The administration just preceding the present one after paying all the current expense of the county and expending more than $1600.00 on public improvements left a surplus for the present administration of $950.00; and it left the roads of the county in good repair. The county roads to day are in a wretched condition although there has been collected in taxes several thousand dollars more for road purposes during the present administration than was collected for that purpose during the former administration. In addition to the taxes collected in the former administration there has been collected during the present, in the way of railroad franchise taxes more than $8,000.00, and besides the values of property in the county have largely increased which has largely increased the amount of taxes. Nearly three eighths of all these extra thousands was paid for road purposes. Was it so used? During the present administration there has come into the county treasury in the way of franchise tax, surplus and the tax on increased values more than nine thousand dollars more money than came into the treasury during the former administration; and yet there was no reduction in the rate of taxation till the present year. The rate of taxes now due is two and one-half cents less on the $100 worth of taxable property, for county purposes, than it had formerly been. Notwithstanding all this extra money the present administration has not expended $500.00 on public improvements.

What has become of all that money? The last settlement of the county treasurer showed there was less than one thousand dollars in the treasury. I can answer that question in one way only. Bad management or extravagance. Can it be less?

The records of the county show where about two thousand six hundred dollars of this money went. It went to your County Attorney and another attorney. For what? More than two thousand was given them as attorney fees in a suit that was pending in the Court of Appeals (the suit in which the above mentioned franchise tax was recovered), but they were not employed till more than three months after the case had been finally submitted and had been given one of the Justices of that Court for opinion and judgment. Your County Attorney's name does not appear as an attorney in the reports of that case. Nearly $500 more was handed over to the same attorneys in a similar case, for similar services (?). I believe those fees were unnecessary, improper and should not have been paid.

There are many other good reasons why I am against the Court-House Ring, but time and space will not admit of them now.

I am glad that I am not the only republican that is against this clique of ring. Many of the most prominent republicans of the county, hard working republicans, true and tried republicans as I am, are with me. We are not making war on the republican party but on the official conduct of men that we believe, yea, that we know has not been in the interest of the people. We want a change, not merely a change from one office to another, but a change that is a change, and if there is anything in what the people say, and in the signs of the times, we are going to have it at change.

Very respectfully,
J. J. COOK.

Get SCOTT'S Emulsion

When you go to a drug store and ask for Scott's Emulsion you know what you want; the man knows you ought to have it. Don't be surprised, though, if you are offered something else. Wines, cordials, extracts, etc., of cod liver oil are plentiful but don't imagine you are getting cod liver oil when you take them. Every year for thirty years we've been increasing the sales of Scott's Emulsion. Why? Because it has always been better than any substitute for it.

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

Among the facts elicited by the Legislative Insurance Investigating Committee in New York yesterday were the contributions by the Mutual Life Insurance Company of $4,000 to the Republican National Committee last fall; $35,000 in 1900 and $15,000 in 1896, while it was also developed that the company paid $72,000 last year for lunches for employees.

Gov. Beckham will probably reply to day to Thos. W. Lawson's request that he act with the Governors in demanding that the big insurance companies restore squandered money to the policy holders.

Mrs. H. V. Bastin, after a two weeks visit to Mt. Vernon friends has returned to Lancaster. While here she made many new and warm friends.

While in Louisville last week Jonas McKenzie either lost or was robbed of $50.00 and his railroad ticket. He is inclined to believe it was the latter.

Dr. D. B. Southard notifies us that his post office address hereafter will be Haven, Kansas. Dr. Southard was rapidly building a name for himself in that part of the county, in which he practiced and to be continually losing such promising young men as he, is what is holding our county back more than any thing else. But such we may expect so long as there are no inducements offered to the rising generations.

APPRECIATED NOTICE.

"The Mt. VERNON SIGNAL," which grows better with every issue, has just rounded out its 19th year, six of which have been under the efficient and careful management of that prince of good fellows, Mr. Edgar S. Albright. Interior Journal.

FOR SHERIFF.—R. J. Abney, of Scaffold Cane, and E. A. Herrin, of Quail, met here Monday and announced themselves candidates for Sheriff on the Independent ticket. Abney will head the ticket with Herrin as his chief deputy. If successful the county is to be divided equally between them and each one to have the right to select his own deputy.

No 22 the Norton and Louisville passenger train, ran into No. 2, the Knoxville and Cincinnati passenger Tuesday at Perth, a siding between Livingston and Hazel Patch. The engine on No. 22 and the Pullman on No. 2 were considerably damaged. Some eight or ten passengers were injured, but no one fatally hurt.

Some twenty-five or thirty citizens of the town met in the court house Tuesday night and nominated the following ticket for town officers: Judge, B. S. Davault; Marshal, E. B. Brown, and for trustees R. B. Mullins, Fritz Krueger, S. C. Franklin, Dr. S. C. Davis and T. J. Pennington. Judge J. T. Adams will be a candidate for re-election and we understand there will be a full opposing ticket.

Deputy Marshal W. T. Shore, accompanied by Deputies Mullins, Greenleaf, Mitchell and Shackelford, conducted a successful raid in Estill county this week. The party captured two shiners and a large still, besides several hundred gallons of beer. The illicit distillers taken are James Durbin and A. Ashcraft. They were brought to this city yesterday and placed in jail to await the action of the Federal Court, which meets next month.—Richmond Register.

Since the Brown Memorial School have spent something over $5000 in our town this year in improvements, we think it is the duty of every citizen to show their appreciation by uniting and building a good side walk from the dormitory to the school. During the winter months it is almost impossible to travel. If you want to improve the town, and encourage those who are improving it, indicate the same by your actions, if the interest of the town is not considered, silence will be sufficient evidence.

James Maret, manager of the Rockcastle lines of the Bastin Telephone Company, says the new pole line will be finished to Pine Hill this week. Five new wires will be strung as far as Pine Hill and three on to Livingston. Two of these wires connect direct with London and all Southeast Kentucky as well as Barbourville, Beattyville and Eastern counties. Lines now being constructed in this county are first-class and up-to-date, and our people will have as good service as is given anywhere. Mr. Maret is the pioneer telephone man in Southeastern Kentucky and is one of the original incorporators of the Bastin company, of which he is still secretary. Through or Long-distance connection is now receiving careful attention and is being improved right along.

And when your babies do get sick, Just bring them here, and do be quick; I'll give them drugs that are so pure, That in a short time, they'll be well sure.

There are other things I have in store, That were bought long since, the days of yore; Such as cigars, tobacco and envelops, Stationary, paints and toilet soaps. And now kind friends, I wish to say, The yellow front is here to stay; And if from me, you buy your pills, You'll not be bothered with doctor's bills.
